Explore the sights and sounds of the holiday season in this feel-good picture book illustrated by award-winning artist Frank Morrison.

It's the most wonderful time of the year, and a mother and daughter are enjoying the sights and sounds of the holiday season. The little girl hears sleigh bells ringing and carolers singing—RING-A-LING! She smells chestnuts roasting—CRUNCH! CRUNCH! CRUNCH!—and sees the flashing lights of the department store windows—BLING! BLING! BLING! She spreads the spirit of giving wherever she goes. And when she reaches Santa, she tells him her Christmas wish—for peace and love everywhere, all the days of the year!

In the same feel-good style of I Got the Rhythm, this text celebrates the joys of the holiday season, once again illustrated by award-winning artist Frank Morrison.

Pope Francis's ground-breaking leadership is brought to life in this lyrical and inspirational picture book biography.

Jorge Bergoglio was a typical boy growing up in Argentina, playing pick-up soccer and listening to the lively musicians on city streets. As his grandma taught him the importance of doing good, he became inspired to help others. From Jesuit priest to "Slum Bishop" of Buenos Aires to Cardinal, Jorge's work gained the attention of his fellow cardinals, and when the time came to elect a new pope, Jorge became Pope Francis.

As the beloved leader of the Catholic Church, Pope Francis has focused on another word for pope: pontiff, a man who builds bridges to reach everyone. He's become an important voice in our world, speaking out on issues, leading by example, and acting as a true pontiff. His story will inspire and inform readers of all ages.

In this beautifully written and stunningly creative debut middle-grade fantasy, color is a rare gift in a gray world. . .

Ishmael lives a monotonous, colorless existence, helping his mother on their farm after the tragic death of his father. One morning, a ray of light pierces a pane of glass in the barn, fragmenting Ishmael's gray world into a brilliant spectrum he never knew existed. This unique ability leads him to the Hall of Hue, one of seven creative workshops at a mysterious place called the Commons.

Now a Color Keeper, Ishmael begins his training: creating landscapes shaped, built, colored, and filled with scent, sound, and taste that become brand new worlds. But when an unexpected conflict threatens the rules of creation, Ishmael must use his extraordinary skill to save a new world from utter disaster. Original and gorgeously crafted, this sweeping story is perfect for fans of Kelly Barnhill and Pam Muñoz Ryan.

Ginger Johnson received an MFA in Writing for Children and Young Adults from Vermont College, where she studied under the tutelage of Kathi Appelt, Martine Leavitt, Sarah Ellis, and Tim Wynne-Jones. While there, she won the Marion Dane Bauer award, and in the summer of 2014 she was awarded a letter of merit from SCBWI for the WIP grant. This is her debut novel.

A DIY guide for young artists from the creator of the internationally known Subway Therapy project.

In the days leading up to and following the 2016 U.S. Presidential Election, artist Matthew "Levee" Chavez arrived at the Union Square subway station and passed out blank sticky notes, urging New Yorkers to express themselves. As the notes were posted to the wall, a colorful and moving collage emerged that reflected the city's rich and diverse personal responses to a divisive moment in history. In that moment, art and activism united a community. In this DIY guide, Chavez shows young readers how to uncover their own inner artists, harness the creative process, and create their very own art projects with a purpose. Young artists will be inspired to share their own perspectives and make a difference—from their homes to schools to neighborhoods and the whole broader world.

Matthew "Levee" Chavez is the creator of Subway Therapy, an ongoing immersive project at the Union Square subway station in Manhattan. A believer in the therapeutic power of communication and providing people with an opportunity to engage, he has worked in crisis management and education in a variety of different roles, including at a magnet school for students with autism. He is a natural born listener—strangers have always talked to him on buses, trains, subways, and planes, and sidewalks. He lives in Brooklyn. www.subwaytherapy.com • @asklevee

A completely gross and totally compelling look at scientific, artistic, and culinary uses of roadkill—perfect for Georgia Bragg fans.

When Heather Montgomery sees a flattened rattlesnake on the road, she takes it home and dissects it; she's always wondered how fangs retract when snakes close their mouths. A wildlife researcher with a fondness for roadkill, she doesn't stop at one snake. Her fascination sets her on a journey from the roads of the American South to scientists and kids in labs and homes across the globe. From biologists who use the corpses of Tasmanian devils to investigate cancer cures, to a boy rebuilding animal bodies from the bones up, to a restaurant that serves animal remnants, death is just the beginning for these creatures.

This narrative nonfiction is an irreverent look at the dead animals we pass by without a second thought as well as a fascinating insight to the scientific research process.

Heather Montgomery has taught in and out of the classroom as well as directed a school-based environmental center. She has written curriculum; trained hundreds of teachers, naturalists, and librarians; and helped thousands of children to make friends with the natural world. She lives in Ardmore, Alabama.

Robyn Hoodlum's story comes to a rousing conclusion in this Robin Hood retelling that Rick Riordan hailed as "compelling."

When twelve-year-old Robyn Loxley set out to save her parents, she never could've predicted that she would become Robyn Hoodlum, leader of the rebellion against the harsh government led by Ignomus Crown. But Robyn's attempt to free her parents has failed, and on top of that, her friends have been captured. And now Crown has given her 72 hours to turn herself in—or else. Robyn must decide between sacrificing herself, saving her parents and friends, or advancing the rebellion. With the stakes higher than ever, will Robyn be able to succeed?

It's no fun, though, when Mrs. Curran always gives Toby the credit for all the ingenious projects, and acts like Kit and Ellie were just helping him...can Ellie come up with another great build to "lift" Mrs. Curran's ideas about this girl engineer?

A compelling and timely young adult adaptation of the book that took the world by storm, New York Times bestseller White Rage.

Carol Anderson's White Rage asserted that as America achieves progress toward black equality, the systemic response is racist backlash. This adaptation for teens examines five of these moments: Reconstruction led to Jim Crow laws; Brown v. Board of Education led to the closing of Southern public schools; the Civil Rights Act and Voting Rights Act led to the disenfranchisement of millions and a War on Drugs that disproportionately targeted blacks; and the election of President Obama led to violence including the death of black teen Michael Brown in Ferguson, Missouri as well as the election of Donald Trump.

This adaptation is written in a narrative style with additional historical context and will feature new content on race in post-Obama America, archival images, and updated backmatter.

Carol Anderson is Charles Howard Candler Professor and Chair of African American Studies at Emory University. She is author of several books, including Bourgeois Radicals: The NAACP and the Struggle for Colonial Liberation, 1941-1960 and Eyes Off the Prize: The United Nations and the African American Struggle for Human Rights: 1944-1955.
