Forestborn

Elayne Audrey Becker

Rora is a shapeshifter, a forestborn who swore to never return the deadly woods in which she was raised.

But when Prince Finley, her best friend, is stricken with a magical illness, his only hope ...

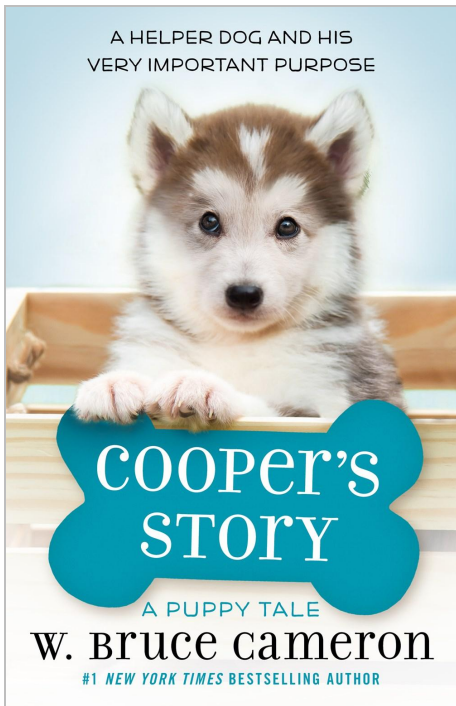

TO BE BORN OF THE FOREST IS A GIFT AND A CURSE.

Rora is a shifter, as magical as all those born in the wilderness—and as feared. She uses her abilities to spy for the king, traveling under different guises and listening for signs of trouble.

When a magical illness surfaces across the kingdom, Rora uncovers a devastating truth: Finley, the young prince and her best friend, has caught it. His only hope is stardust, the rarest of magical elements, found deep in the wilderness where Rora grew up—and to which she swore never to return.

But for her only friend, Rora will face her past and brave the dark, magical wood, journeying with her brother and the obstinate, older prince who insists on coming. Together, they must survive sentient forests and creatures unknown, battling an ever-changing landscape while escaping human pursuers who want them dead. With illness gripping the kingdom and war on the horizon, Finley's is not the only life that hangs in the balance.

ELAYNE AUDREY BECKER graduated from Vassar College with a BA in Classics and history. She is currently continuing her education at the University of Aberdeen in Scotland after time spent as an editor at a New York publisher. She grew up with a lake and woods as her backyard, spending long days outside and visiting national parks with her family.

Teen influencer Naema Bradshaw has it all: she's famous, privileged, has “the good hair”— and she’s an Eloko, a person who’s gifted with a song that woos anyone who hears it. Everyone loves her — well, until she's cast as the awful person who exposed Tavia’s secret siren powers.

Now, she's being dragged by the media. No one understands her side: not her boyfriend, not her friends, nor her Eloko community. But Naema knows the truth and is determined to build herself back up — no matter what.

When a new, flourishing segment of Naema’s online supporters start targeting black girls, however, Naema must discover the true purpose of her magical voice.

A Novel

Bethany C. Morrow

Legacies meets Nic Stone's Dear Martin in Morrow's YA fantasy debut: best friends discover their magical identities against today's challenges facing young black girls

Tavia is already at odds with the world, forced to keep her siren identity under wraps in a society that wants to keep her kind under lock and key. Nevermind she's also stuck in Portland, Oregon, a city with only a handful of black folk and even fewer of those with magical powers. At least she has her bestie Effie by her side as they tackle high school drama, family secrets, and unrequited crushes.

But everything changes in the aftermath of a siren murder trial that rocks the nation; the girls' favorite Internet fashion icon reveals she's also a siren, and the news rips through their community. Tensions escalate when Effie starts being haunted by demons from her past, and Tavia accidentally lets out her magical voice during a police stop. No secret seems safe anymore— soon Portland won't be either.

Last Girls

Demetra Brodsky

A twisting suspense about sisterhood, survival, and family secrets set in the world of doomsday prepping

Honey Juniper and her sisters live by a simple code: we stick together, no matter what. It's a code that works equally well on the road with their paranoid mother, in every new school they have to attend, and in the event of a potential apocalypse.

Escalating global tensions. Unstable President. Climate change. There are so many ways it could all go down. But Honey and her sisters are prepared. It's only a matter of time until the world ends, but their world won't be ending with it.

But when their mom moves them to a secret compound where there are other kids like them--kids who know how to shoot a compound bow, kill and cook meat they've raised, and what SHTF (when 'shit hits the fan,' i.e.: prepper speak) means, they'll have to face an entirely new kind of danger.

They thought they were preparing for a potential apocalypse. But the real threat is much closer to home.

Chasing Starlight

Teri Bailey Black

A high concept, light-hearted, historical YA about the Golden Age of Hollywood

1938. The Golden Age of Hollywood. Palm trees and movie stars. Film studios pumping out musicals and gangster films at a furious pace. Everyone wants to be a star—except society girl and aspiring astronomer Kate Hildebrand. She's already famous after a childhood tragedy turned her into a newspaper headline. What she craves now is stability.

But when Kate has to move to Hollywood to live with her washed-up, silent film star grandfather, she walks into a murder scene and finds herself on the front page again. She suspects one of the young men boarding in her grandfather's run-down mansion is the killer—or maybe even her grandfather.

Now, Kate must discover the killer while working on the set of a musical—and falling in love. Will her stars align so she can catch the murderer and live the dream in Old Hollywood? Or will she find that she's just chasing starlight?

From the award-winning author of the 2019 Thriller Award for Best Young Adult Novel comes a thrilling tour through the glamour of Old Hollywood and beyond, into its shadows.

96 Miles

J. L. Esplin

Now in paperback: a survival story sure to appeal to fans of Gary Paulsen's classic Hatchet and Lauren Tarshis's bestselling I Survived series.

Dad always said if things get desperate, it's okay to drink the water in the toilet. I never thought it would come to that. I thought I'd sooner die than let one drop of toilet water touch my lips. Yet here I am, kneeling before a porcelain throne, holding a tin mug for scooping in one hand, and my half-gallon canteen in the other.

The Lockwood brothers are supposed to be able to survive anything. Their dad, a hardcore believer in self-reliance, has stockpiled enough food and water at their isolated Nevada home to last for months. But when they are robbed of all their supplies during a massive blackout while their dad is out of town, John and Stew must walk 96 miles in the stark desert sun to get help. Along the way, they're forced to question their dad's insistence on self-reliance and ask just what it is that we owe to our neighbors, to our kin, and to ourselves.

From talented newcomer J. L. Esplin comes this story of survival and determination as two young brothers confront the unpredictability of human nature in the face of desperate circumstances.

For fans of Gary Paulsen's classic Hatchet and Lauren Tarshis's bestselling I Survived series, a story of survival and desperation as two young brothers confront the worst in humanity—and themselves.

When not writing, she enjoys teaching guitar the fun way, traveling to new places, and coming back home to the desert.
